POINTS OF INTEREST

Gloucester, Cape Ann — First white man to visit its shores was Thorwald in 1004. Harbor called by Norsemen "Krossanes." Gosnold landed here in 1602 and found the place had been used as a base by Portuguese fishermen. In 1605 Champlain sailed by the Cape but did not land. The next year, September 1606, he entered the harbor which he named Le Beauport and made a map of it. Attacked by 200 Indians and sailed away the next day. In 1614 Capt. John Smith named it Cape Ann after Anne of Denmark, mother of King Charles I. First permanent settlement of the Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1623.

Stage Fort Park at westerly entrance of city. Site of settlement of Massachusetts Bay Colony, 1623-24. Tablet in commemoration of that fact placed on face of large boulder. Conant, Half Moon and Stone beaches.

Rafe's Chasm and Norman's Woe. Scene of "Wreck of the Hesperus." At Magnolia, Hesperus avenue. Fissure in solid rock cliff is 60 feet deep and 12 feet wide.

Mother Ann profile in Stone discovered in 1892 by Capt. William Thompson of Salem at tip end of Eastern Point. Dog Bar breakwater extends from a half mile long, completed in 1904 and extends from this point. On Eastern Point are many of the show residences of the North Shore. "The Ramparts" occupies site of Fort Independence.

Ten Pound Island in outer harbor; government fish hatchery thereon. Used as sheep pasture in early days. Five Pound Island in inner harbor; both so named for amounts in colonial money originally sold for.

Thompson's mountain, or Mt. Anne, West Gloucester, highest elevation on the Cape, 255 feet above sea level. Fine view ranging from Mt. Agamenticus on Maine coast to Wachusett Mountain, Bunker Hill Monument to Boston Bay. Tract given over as reservation in memory of Lawrence Minot; thickly wooded, favorite picnic resort; reached from New Way Lane. Nearby is Haskell's pond, from which city's water is secured.

Ravenswood Park, natural forest area extending from Fresh Water Cove to West Gloucester. Reached from Fresh Water Cove or the so-called Old Salem road, Western avenue. Mason Walton's cabin, "Hermit of Bond's Hill," on this road. Well worth frequenting.

Beacon or Governor's Hill, near center of city, from Washington street. Small reservation at top from which a fine view may be obtained.

Dogtown Commons, site of deserted Revolutionary settlement. Reached from Gee avenue, Riverdale. Fine example of the boulder deposits of glacial period. "Whale's Jaw," best known of these boulders, at edge of common. Rocking stone, etc., now taken over by the city as a water shed.

Wharves skirting the water front, interesting as affording "close-up" of fish curing, etc.

Babson House, opposite Ellery House, erected by Col. John Low about 1745. Old slave pens in attic.

Main street, first known as Fore, afterwards as Front street. Principal business avenue. Laid out 1642. Middle street, paralleling Main, contains many old colonial houses and the Judith Sargent house, the grounds of which, originally extending to Main street have been restored.

On Middle street are the First Parish (Unitarian) Church, oldest in Gloucester; Independent Christian (Universalist) first Universalist society in America, church edifice erected 1805; St. John's Episcopal Church, Trinity Congregational Church and the First Baptist Church.

Sawyer Free Library and Reading Room, Middle street, adjoining Unitarian church. Interior fine specimen of colonial woodwork. Originally home of Thomas Sanders, merchant.

Old Town Hall Square, at junction of Middle and Washington streets. Beautiful American Legion Memorial building and monument on which was placed statue of Joan of Arc by Anna Vaughn Hyatt.

Fort Point, at western side of inner harbor, down Commercial street from Main, fortified in 1743. Now Italian quarter and rendezvous of fishermen of that nationality.

Drives around the Cape: Up Washington street, through Riverdale, past Annisquam, Bay View, Lanesville into Pigeon Cove, Rockport and completing the circuit to Gloucester. Almost a continuous ocean view, which was completed when the Bass Rocks-Land's End stretch was completed.

Beaches: Little Good Harbor and Long Beaches, between Bass Rocks and Land's End, Rockport. Wingaersheek Beach, West Gloucester, largest on Cape, two miles long, 600 feet deep at low tide; reached from Essex avenue, West Gloucester, down Concord street.

Quarries at Bay View and Pigeon Cove, among largest in country, near main highway.

Blynman canal, first cut in 1642 by Rev. Richard Blynman, at Western entrance of city.

Drives: "Little Heater," "Dark Hole" at West Gloucester.

Old Salem road, first highway from the town, blazed out in 1626, when part of the settlers went to Salem. Down Hesperus avenue (discontinued in 1892) to Salem. Name erroneously applied to Old Pest House road, leading through Ravenswood park from Western ave.

"He dwelt with the tribes of marsh and moor.
He sate at the board of kings,
He tasted the toil of the burdened slave
And the joy that triumph brings;

But whether to jungle or palace hall
Or white-walled tent he came,
He was brother to kings and soldier and slave,
His welcome was the same."

THE VETERAN VOTE

WHAT EFFECT the veterans vote on the forthcoming national campaign? For it is conceded that if cast in practically a solid bloc it may be the determining factor. That was the case in the last presidential election.

Thoroughly angered over the attitude of the last administration the veterans turned almost in a solid mass against Hoover. For had not Roosevelt in his acceptance pronouncement promised "to do justice to the veteran."

Now it is no dark secret that the Rooseveltian concept of justice and the veterans notion of the same is as far out of kilter as the North and the South Poles.

The question is how far will this opposition carry in the November election? That it has shown its power in the last three years is evidenced in the fact of its overwhelming victory on the bonus question. Against the most determined opposition that any measure has faced in national history, the President, solidly intrenched as any dictator, the national Chamber of Commerce with its subsidiaries in every city, town and hamlet, the National Economy League and International Bankers anxious to have their private debts with foreign countries settled by governmental aid—it has won out after a three-year gruelling battle. The Bull Run of the opening days of the present administration has been converted into the deciding Appomattox of conquest. Victorious it stands today more united than ever a factor to be reckoned with.

What is its potential voting strength? Some four millions entered the service. Of that number some 3,500,000 applied for and received the bonus money in June last month.

Commander James Van Zandt of the Veterans of Foreign Wars estimates that the actual strength of every veteran is four votes namely, himself, wife and his two parents.

This it is conceded is a conservative estimate. There are sisters, brothers, cousins, aunts all vitally interested and "the female of the species is more deadly (in earnest) than the male" the most of them enrolled in the women's auxiliaries. Then again there are the junior organizations, sons and daughters of World War Veterans, many of whom will vote in the 1940 presidential election, constantly coming of age. It is a safe estimate that the potential voting influence of every World War Veteran is as one to five or six.

The dissatisfaction with the administration's concept of "Justice" is, as is well known, wide and deep. The writer ran into an example of this quite recently in this city. A former fisherman had enlisted in the government's call for skilled seamen—some 500 responded in three days here several weeks before the formal declaration of war. He died at 77 leaving seven adult children all of voting age. All had voted for Roosevelt. But their attitude had changed. His compensation had been taken away and only after much effort was a modicum of the original sum allowed after he had been cut off altogether. Originally he had taken out a government veteran's insurance policy for $5000 but on account of increasing premium demands had been compelled to reduce it to $1000. The family felt bitterly about this and so expressed themselves. There is no question as to whom they will not vote for. And this is no exceptional case. Rather wide spread and far flung.

If we accept the minimum quota of four veterans as a multiple of voting strength there are some 14,000,000 votes to be considered; if the five to one ratio this is increased to 20,000,000. In close states these may be the deciding factor. More especially in every congressional district each apportioned as to a unit strength of 40,000, and in senatorial, state-wide nomination and election primaries.

Now and then figures are published as to the World War Veterans dying at the rate of 40,000 annually the assumption being that their power decreases in that ratio. But how about their children coming to voting age? Children who demand that the practice of widow's pensions—established from the beginning of the government—be re-established. Instead of their influence decreasing it is increasing in a geometrical ratio in their descendants. An example: The local G. A. R. Post in this city reached its maximum strength at 260 membership out of a potential 1500. Its descendants, Sons and Daughters of Union Veterans and its two Woman's auxiliaries numbering some 500 voters are more potent politically today than the original body and many by natural affiliation will line up on election day with the World War contingent.

These then, are the facts to be considered in sizing up the outcome of next election day. Both Congress and Senate appraised them with unerring eye when they overrode the President's wishes in passing the bonus payment bill over the veto.

It was generally accepted that one of the prime objects of the CCC was to enroll young men who would naturally offset the Veteran influence and vote and, if necessary be transformed into a trained military unit, to combat any overt acts of the Veterans, such as bonus marches and the like. Such was openly advocated in the anti-Veteran press and this view was widespread but the plan—if so intended—has proved futile.

The young men given $30 a month, sending $10 or more home were soon dissatisfied. Twenty a month and semi-military regimentation had no allure for ambitious, worth-while young men, the majority of whom soon tired of the outfit leaving its membership to a negative contingent far from militaristic in its notions and prospective as anti-Veteran shock troops.

It is evident that the doughboys and doughgirls will present solid ranks at the doughdish on election roundups. They didn't want to go but were taken by the nape of neck as draftees and thrown into the trenches and promised all sorts of rewards, present and future. Now they are in a collecting mood and intend to cash in on the promises.

Many of these men returned with

THE LIGHTSHIP

William Hervey Woods, in the Century.

She lies far out along the bar,
A ghost by day, by night a star
That sways and swings and dips;
Though chained, she knows no
anchored ease—
Though tides are full and fresh the breeze,
She rides, but may not sail the seas,
This sentinel of ships;
Hers but to watch by ruin's lair,
And lift her warning light in air.

Her sides are oak of triple strength,
Her mast a pine tree's sturdy length,
Unhelped of boom or spar
The lantern bears, her only sail;
Yet naked thus she dares the gale,
With plunging prow and buried rail,
Or breasts the breakers' war—
An amazon of courage high
Who may not fight and will not fly.

Her sister ships their wings have spread,
Perhaps by dark Magellan's head
Or on Ionian seas;
Dim Greenland's isles of ice they knew,
They sailed Hawaii's waters blue,
And Aden's shallows loitered through,
Along the dying breeze;
And she, in calms when cables
slack,
May drift five fathoms out—and back.

Not hers in glassy bays to seem
A dream-bark mirrored in a dream,
Nor hers the joy to feel
Her black hull on and onward
whirled,
The rush of winds, the waves up-curled High o'er her bows, as round the world
She sweeps on bounding keel.
While ocean 'neath her laughs and swings,
And ropes are songs and sails are wings.

And yet no bulk of senseless stone
Is she, on some stern cliff alone—
A ship's heart in her beats;
She thrills to every tide that turns,
Her naked mast for canvas years,
And each proud timber in her spurns
The chain that still defeats
Her forward plunge, and holds her
slave
Whose will is tameless as the wave.

She will not always fettered ride—
Some night at turning of the tide,
When God's great winds are out.
A lightning bolt her bonds will rive,
And she, unchained, alert, alive,
Will on her one mad voyage drive,
And, 'mid the mighty rout,
While heaven and earth com-
mingled roar,
Pass—to be seen of men no more.

Art and Dramatic

ARTISTRY AT THE GLOUCESTER SOCIETY'S GALLERY —SECOND EXHIBIT

At the Gloucester Artist's Gallery there are many extremely interesting and delicate subjects appreciatively portrayed on canvas. The black and whites also grip the spectator's imagination. Among the sculptured work, one feels the thought that the creator placed in his work. The placement of all the paintings, black and whites, and sculpture is one to catch to the best advantage the shadings that result from the falling light.

Among some of the notable paintings there, one is sure to notice "Sako, the Japanese Dancer." The brilliant coloring shades in completely with the black background and the use of the static line gives one a sense of rhythm.

Margaret Fitzhugh Browne contributed this work of art.

Oscar Anderson's "Hillside and Meadow" catches all the lights that decorate a golden afternoon. His application of pigments gives one the sensation of being near to Nature and seeing through his eyes what he has placed before us.

In Pamela S. Adams "Portrait" she shows a delicate understanding and sympathy and transfers this feeling to her canvas.

"The Sea" by Benjamin Cratz, is broad in his treatment and generous in his choice. His coloring is natural and one who knows the seas will appreciate the understanding with which this was done.

Another picture which catches the imagination is "In the Glen" by J. Eliot Enneking. The nuances of shading and his application of pigments places him in the Realist class.

Sara Kramer Glass exhibits "Park in Spring," which makes one long to wander through the park and see all the delicate subtleties that she could see and bring before us.

The picture "The China Sea," by Gordon Grant is a typical picture by the artist. There is a vigor felt and expressed and the knowledge shown of sea life is truly sincere.

"Gloucester Docks" by Emile A. Gruppe is the scene of a typical Gloucester. The pigment placement is subtle and of a wide range.

Neil MacEachern's "Manchester Village" shows a complete understanding of his subject. One who knows would certainly enjoy the treatment given to this artist's work. He has several black and whites and one or two small pictures, also exhibited.

"Vision" by Ronda Rheel is a striking example of mysticism. It is all in a dull tone and gives one over to thought for a while.

Unberto Romane's "Psyche and the Sculptor" is another large painting that will attract many people. The brilliant coloring makes it stand out as one of the most interesting and the reality of it leaves one admiring.

"Neptune's Playmates" by Antoinette Inglis is also of the Realist type. The sympathetic understanding of children is shown in her delicate treatment of her subject and her perfect background.

Among the sculpture, one work of art that greatly interests one is called "Coupe Horses" by Rosamond Sears. The lines that curve and the position of the horses that shows to advantage the animals at their best makes one appreciate our dumb beasts.

MacLean Marshall's "Phaon," a statue of a nude, is very striking. The use of the lines of the body is quite dynamic and the work being done in bronze adds a certain distinction.

A clever black and white drawing is "Scotty" by Elsa Anshutz. The dog is placed on a dead white background and this makes him completely the center of attraction.

There are many more interesting and thought-provoking pictures to be seen in the Gallery. There are Marines, Still Lifes, Portraits, more pieces of sculpture and in the Little Gallery the room is filled with small pictures, all that capture the imagination with their bright and pastel colorings. The black and whites are also extremely well done, and are full of interest. A word description cannot do justice to the art that is to be found at the Gallery. One must see it to behold the beauty portrayed.

“FAIR HARVARD”

Author of this Nationally Known College Classic Gloucester Born and Bred -- May Have Been Written in Judith Sargent House

HOUSE OF THE GLOUCESTER SCIENTIFIC AND LITERARY ASSOCIATION

Home of a Gloucester shipmaster built about 1805. To this has been added in about equal dimension the Lucy Brown Annex and Auditorium alluded to in last issue.

The New York Times recently printed a special dispatch from Cambridge relative to the authorship of the hymn Fair Harvard, unquestionably the widest known and most moving college song—or perhaps hymn—of this country. Its rendition in group singing even when many non-Harvard men participate invariably move many to tears. It is doubtful whether any national song, God Save the King, or the Marsaillaise, sound the depths of college or national pride and patriotism more than Fair Harvard the music as in the case of the Marsaillaise adding much to its fervor. The forthcoming celebration of the Harvard Tercentenary has naturally brought this ode to the fore. The music was happily appropriated by Tom Moore in his poem, Believe Me If All These Enduring Young Charms. Music genealogists trace its origin back to Greek antiquity as they find in Anacreon the tune of the Star Spangled Banner—utilized previously as an old English drinking song.

The article in The Times in part—

All good Harvard men know the words of “Fair Harvard,” but not one in a thousand knows the name of the man who wrote the lines, largely because the author is not credited in any of the Harvard songbooks.

He was the Rev. Samuel Gilman, a Harvard graduate and a Unitarian minister at Charleston, S. C. His ode, called “the noblest college song yet written in America,” is sung at every Harvard festive occasion and will have especial significance at the tercentenary this Fall.

Tradition has it that Mr. Gilman wrote the ode under pressure. He had come back to Cambridge for the bicentennial with some reputation for his poetry. He was urged to write an ode, but is said to have pleaded lack of time. He was finally convinced, and one account states that he wrote it less than thirteen hours before it was to be sung at the morning exercises on Sept. 8.

Tradition also says that it was written in a second-floor room in the northwest corner of the Judge Samuel P. Fay house, now the administration building of Radcliffe College. Mrs. Fay and Mrs. Gilman were sisters.

Born in Gloucester, Mass., in 1791, Mr. Gilman was graduated in 1811 from Harvard, where he won several honors and contributed articles and verses to the publications. He taught at the Boston Latin School and later at Harvard. In 1815 he composed the Harvard Phi Beta Kappa poem.

While teaching he preached in many New England pulpits as a candidate for the ministry. In 1819 he went to Charleston, S. C., where he was asked to settle as pastor of the Second Independent Church, Unitarian. With his wife, the former Caroline Howard of Boston, he held the pastorate almost forty years.

He died in 1858 at the home of one of his daughters in Kingston, Mass., and was buried in Charleston, mourned by the community and the State.

But the more than tradition here is that it was written in what is known as the Sargent-Murray-Gilman-Hough house on Middle Street, perhaps best shortened to the Judith Sargent house, now preserved as a memorial to one of the Sargent family—through the instrumentality of its late pastor Rev. Dr. Levi Powers and the late Winthrop Sargent—one of the museum houses of New England.

Young Samuel received his education in the public schools of the town and his college fitting at Atkinson Academy, graduating at Harvard in 1811. After graduation he engaged in teaching for a number of years then studied for the ministry, being ordained a minister in 1818, thus passing much of his formative days at his home in this city in which he passed his vacations during such was the case. Seven cities claim Homer dead as his birthplace. Several the honor of housing the Gloucester poet Gilman when inspired to write the ode to his Alma Mater which has brought him immortality.

BASS ROCKS OF YESTERYEAR

Bass Rocks In 1880. Sheet and Pillow Case Party. Masquerade Ball. First Game of Tennis Played at Bass Rocks and Probably on Cape Ann. Concert at the Summer Home of Judge Edgar J. Sherman Given to Help Defray the Expenses of Purchasing Tennis Outfit from Wright and Ditson In Boston.

By Silas Hibbard Ayer, M.D.
of Boston

THE summer of 1880 I spent at Bass Rocks. Together with my chum, George L. Davis of Chelsea, Mass., we slept in a tent erected along side of the cottage of Nathaniel Davis of Lowell, Mass., at the corner of Beach and Atlantic Roads. This cottage was one of four cottages built at Bass Rocks in 1873 and they were owned by a Mr. Norcross of Watertown, Mass., Horace Barker of Lowell, Mass., a Mr. Wright of Lowell, Mass., and the before mentioned Nathaniel Davis.

Judge Sherman built his summer home on the extreme point of Bass Rocks in 1875. The building of this cottage caused some indignation among these four original Bass Rockers for the reason that when they purchased their lots it was stipulated in the deed that there would never be any land sold east of Atlantic Road for building purposes.

However, on account of the failure of the land company and the acquirement of practically the whole of Bass Rocks by Henry Souther, Esq., these restrictions were removed and today many cottages exist between Atlantic Road and the creek that, according to agreement, never should have been built.

However, it was seven years after this time that I appeared on the scene and, together with my chum, we were not much interested in any little difference of opinion among the occupants of the several cottages that had sprung up during that time.

Personally, I was to enter Harvard Medical School that fall, and had, I remember, successfully passed my examination in Latin by Oliver Wendell Holmes, a physician but better known

JUDITH SARGENT HOUSE IN WHICH "FAIR HARVARD" WAS WRITTEN

Rev. Dr. Samuel Gilman, the author, was born in this house, passed his boyhood, academical and Harvard college days there after he became for some time a teacher at Harvard. His Gloucester background may be briefly stated:

He was descended on both sides from Gloucester families of standing. He was the son of Maj. Samuel Gilman and his mother was Abigail Somes, daughter of Benjamin Somes, a lineal descendant of Morris Somes who settled in Gloucester before 1642. His father was one of the locally famed tavern keepers and after the death of her husband his mother kept a store in Front now named Main Street. Maj. Gilman was for a number of years commander of the Gloucester Artillery. He died in May, 1798, and his funeral was one of the most imposing for many years in the town, being attended by the Third Regiment, the Gloucester Artillery and all the fire societies of the town.

his academical and college teaching years.

In those days the South sent many of the flower of its youth to Harvard to be educated and young Gilman, through college associations, made many warm friends among this representation, this acquaintance being the instrumentality through which he received a call to the ministry of the Second Unitarian church in the historic city of Charleston, S. C. His popularity and hold on his people is attested from the fact that he held the pastorate of the church for more than forty years. His death occurred at Kingston, Mass., while on a visit to the North and his body was taken to Charleston where it is interred in the cemetery hard by the church.

So the tradition is strong here that the words of Fair Harvard were written in one of the rooms of the Judith Sargent house, the residence of his parents. And the probability is strong that

EAST GLOUCESTER

THE HAWTHORNE Inn tonight (Saturday, Aug. 15) celebrates its golden foundation anniversary with an appropriate program "The Gay Nineties" which, fortunately, some of the guests of yesteryear have in charge of presentation. Probably few hotels in this country have reflected the prestige and individuality of its founder, the late George O. Stacy, its fame being national and enduring.

So in keeping with the spirit of the occasion Mrs. Alice Fischer Harcourt has arranged a picturesque pageant beginning with a parade of guests in the costumes of that gay but decorous era above mentioned to the Casino. Then comes euchre and other diversions, a stage show of the time under the direction of William Harmer, a "Play of Fashion" written by Grace Filkins with Miss Filkins and Mrs. Edward D. Parsons in the leading parts. A feature is the bar—which the barkeepers Scott O'Connor, Joseph Rittenhouse and Caleb C. Magruder will enliven between potations with that plaintive ditty of other days "We Never Drink Behind the Bar" etcetera.

Assisting Mrs. Harcourt will be Mrs. Ernest Baldwin, Mds. St. John Butler, Miss Nina Chanut, Mrs. Joseph M. Cobb, Mrs. N. D. Drumme, Mrs. Harry Elger, Mrs. A. F. Hooper, Mrs. Erma Kuhn, Mrs. Robert W. Lewis, Mrs. Walter Richards, Mrs. Joseph Rittenhouse, Miss Stewart, Miss Vickery, Mrs. Hooper Wakefield and Mrs. W. D. Wheelwright.

And so say we all of us with Tiny Tim "Lord keep his memory green."

The fourth annual tennis tournament at the Hotel Rockaway opened yesterday with first round matches in men's and women's singles and men's doubles. In men's singles, Robert Voorhis, winner last year, will receive plenty of competition from Palmer Lloyd of Bass Rocks, William S. Packer Jr., Tom Slevakul and Thomas Morrison of the Siamese Legation.

Favored pairs in the doubles are Dr. Warren Babson and Robert Voorhis and Packer Jr. and Kenneth Cooper.

A large gallery comprising Rockaway guests and summer residents are watching the matches.

The Summary

MEN'S SINGLES (First Round)

Thomas Phelps defeated J. E. Andrew, 6-0, 6-2.

Wick Jones defeated Robert Tarr, 6-4, 7-5. Jack Raymond defeated Bud Phillips, by default.

Ernest Cain defeated John Dunlop, 6-0, 6-3. Richard Brooks defeated Prescott Kettel, by default.

Robert Voorhis defeated Frank Brewer, 6-2, 6-1.

WOMEN'S SINGLES (First Round)

Katharine Burrill defeated Jane Schmidt, 6-1, 6-2.

Peggy Baker defeated Patricia Gavin, by default.

BASS ROCKS

Mr. and Mrs. Gorham Parsons Sargent gave an informal party at their summer home in Haskell street Sunday evening to which a number of their friends were bidden in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Hibbard Ayer, the former one of the sons of Dr. Silas Hibbard Ayer, Bass Rockers of years' standing. The four sons of Dr. Ayer have certainly gone far in the musical world since their youthful days at the Rocks. As may be anticipated the evening's diversion was distinctly musical, Mr. Hibbard Ayer with the co-operation of another former Bass Rocker, Mr. Welsh—recently returned from the West coast for a brief stay—contributing at the piano some of the song hits of yesteryear and the present with much feeling and aplomb, accompanied by young Mr. Sargent on an electrical guitar.

A feature of the evening was the solo and ensemble violin playing of that ever youthful dean of all Bass Rockers, Dr. Silas Hibbard Ayer, whose skill on this king of instruments was signally demonstrated. Dr. Ayer is also a composer of merit as the playing of a piano duet by father and son of the "Sportsman's March," an original composition, evidenced.

An added feature was the singing to music of a recent composition of Dr. Ayer which we have the privilege of presenting and which bids fair to be the distinctive rallying song of the Bass Rocks colony.

Thursday evening, August 6, Miss Prentiss entertained a party of friends at dinner at the Bass Rocks Golf Club.

Miss Gilbert and Mrs. Elwell were hostesses at the bridge luncheon held at the Bass Rocks Golf Club, Tuesday.

ANNISQUAM

THE PASSING of Harry H. Wiggin removes a dominant figure in Annisquam life extending many years. He left his impress on Annisquam yachting life succeeding, in a measure, as far as advancing the yachting interest of the locality is concerned, the late Commodore Luther S. Bent who sponsored the building of the first clubhouse and really gave the place for the first time a summer yachting and community house which has proved a big factor in encouraging and upbuilding the social interests. In addition Mr. Wiggin became interested in a land development program at Rockholm which eventuated in the building of a number of fine residential houses and a consequent increase in the taxable valuation. He stood for things constructive.

BASS ROCKS OF YESTERYEAR

as a poet, and father of the late Judge Oliver Wendell Holmes of Boston, Washington, and Beverly Farms.

There were no trolley cars at that time and the only way to get over to Bass Rocks from the station at Gloucester was with Lem. Lane in his old stage coach. There were very few roads existent then. Bass Avenue was not there and to reach Bass Rocks one was obliged to climb the steep hill at East Gloucester up to the Bass Rocks House and old Mansion House, so called. The former of these was burned down in 1896 but the Mansion House still exists.

From the top of the hill, and passing the Bass Rocks House, one turns abruptly to the left on to what is now Beach Road. Going down this road one approached a point where Atlantic Road first began but to get on to this road it was necessary to open an old red gate, erected to keep the cows out, and after closing same, the road wound round to the Pebbly Beach House, destroyed by fire in 1884. On this site in 1896 was built the Hotel Moorland, the Hotel Thorwald being erected the following year.

But I fear that I have allowed myself to say too much about Bass Rocks itself for it was my intention to say just a bit about the children of Bass Rocks, now 56 years ago; what they did to amuse themselves, and perhaps, as interesting as anything to their parents, the cost of providing such amusements.

Bathing in the creek and in the breakers on Little Good Harbor beach was the chief sport of everybody. There they would congregate every forenoon in bathing costumes that contained sufficient material to probably make a dozen or more costumes today. Possibly this is one of the reasons that so many cloth mills have gone to the wall because so small an amount of goods is now required to cover up the exposed anatomy today as compared to over fifty years ago.

In addition to bathing the boys and girls played hare and hounds running across Little Good Harbor Beach, Long Beach to Rockport and back to Bass Rocks.

We had, of course, a baseball club and used to go to the near end of Stage Fort Park to play our games with the Gloucester boys. The girls would come along to root for the team. The word "fan" was not heard of in those days. No gloves, masks, shin guards or abdomen protectors were even thought of in those days. The catcher simply had to stand up and take his medicine, so to speak, without complaint even if he did lose a tooth or two at times.

Dinner was always served at noon and after an early supper the young people would all congregate on the "green" located at the corner of Atlantic and Nautilus Roads. Winthrop Sargent afterwards built his cottage at this point as also did Arthur Cox just alongside of the common.

Here the usual games were played, nearly everybody taking part, and as it began to grow dark all would sit down together and someone would tell his favorite ghost story, which, doubtless, was sufficient to keep some of the younger fry more or less awake during the night soon to follow.

I say "soon to follow" advisedly for promptly at nine o'clock the curfew horn would resound down from the Davis cottage, which meant just one thing and that was to come home at once.

How different things are today! Nine o'clock at night now means about

MILADY GOES SHOPPING

Gloucester, Mass.

Dear Eloise,

I suppose you are anxious to discover how I fared in regard to the dilemma I was left in last week. I finally, after much deliberation, came to a satisfactory solution—I went with both Jerry and Charles. It seemed as if the old saying "Two is company, three's a crowd" were prevailing. It held full sway while dining at the Stage Coach Inn, and continued all evening while dancing at the Rendez-Vous. It was too bad that there weren't two of me so I could be dancing with both of them to keep peace. However, I had a glorious time, and was not the least bit bothered by the slight tention indulged in by my two escorts.

Another bit of news—Mr. and Mrs. Smythe, Joan and her husband to you, are living in marital congeniality in their new home. Joan is most attractive—very petite and chic, with a small mouth and sparkling teeth, a slightly turned up nose, dark brown eyes, and shiny ebony hair falling gracefully about her head in waves and curls. Chris, her husband, is a very tall, well-built blonde with chiseled features and, of course, the usual big blue eyes prevalent in blondes. He has an extremely captivating personality.

They had come to Gloucester intending to spend the remainder of the summer with Mr. and Mrs. Marsh. You can imagine their surprise when they were escorted to their new home which was all ready for habitation. Naturally, they were thrilled to pieces about it all, and everything "suited them to a tee." Joan and I have become the best of pals, and she said she was anxious to go over town and look around the stores.

A few days later, Joan decided it was time for her to start her own house-keeping. There were no provisions in the house, so that was the first important thing to do. With my training, I was well able to advise her in her shopping. We went to the First National Store while Joan stocked up on supplies. They were featuring a sale on fresh vegetables, so we bought carrots, spinach, string beans, potatoes and some delicious ears of corn. Of course, we had to have meats, fruits and canned vegetables, too. We were worrying about conveying all these purchases in the roadster, but that was all settled for us—the clerk offered to have them delivered.

After making a short call at the Gloucester National and Cape Ann National Banks, we ambled on to the Gas and Electric company, the headquarters for electrical appliances. Because we wanted to equip the kitchen with the best of electrical labor-savers, we naturally went here. It is amazing and wonderful how the wonder of electricity has been adapted so as to contribute to the saving of labor in the kitchen, and you will really find some remarkable things at this store. We selected a beautiful electric iron, a very dear toaster for a bride and groom, and a thoroughly efficient percolator. They are pleasing to look at and guaranteed as to operation.

We stopped at the Co-operative Bank and Joan remarked on the pleasantries of the people working there. You know they are always on hand and willing to help one.

By the way, my rock garden is coming along famously and Tim has allowed me a little more space for planting seeds. So we went into L. E. Andrews to get them. We also bought some cute little gadgets for the lawn—a little figure of a girl watering and some cute little wooden animals.

Joan had to have a few light-weight dresses to work around the house in, and I suggested that we go to Mimi's. Their summer cottons were just the thing for this purpose. Eloise, if I don't stay out of Mimi's, I shall be listed among the paupers. I bought a skirt blouse, and shorts affair. They were made of a gayly colored print and were very stylish looking.

I thought it would be a good idea to go home before we spent any more money, but on the way home we made one more stop. You have probably heard that there are many wonderfully interesting places to see in Gloucester, one of these being the Gorton-Pew Fish Company, one of the largest fish processors in the world. Joan and I made a tour of inspection through there the other day, and it is surely worth one's time to accept the cordial invitation of the company to inspect its plant. If the value of fish as a food was more generally known, I think that the varied products of this company in their gay and modern packages would go out in added millions.

On reaching home, we found that the provisions had already been delivered. We sorted them out and packed them away in the Coolerator. The service man called last week to see that the Coolerator was in perfect working condition.

We planned a beach party and Joan made all the sandwiches and what goes with them. We all trooped off to Pebble Beach for the day and had one grand and glorious time. To make the party a little more successful, we invited Carol Robbins to go with Jerry, and, to me, she was the usual bore, but he seemed quite pleased. Maybe it will be another budding romance, at least we hope so.

Romance or no romance, I must be off to my secretarial duties, because fitting out a bride's home and doing Mr. Marsh's work are two different things, and I'm being paid for one and not the other.

Until later,

C. ANNE SHORE.

the seeds of disease service connected impregnated in their systems. With advanced years, these infirmities are beginning to manifest themselves. They believe it is the duty of the government to see that they are adequately cared for. Now having giving these facts and figures we are going to leave it to the reader to figure out their probable course in the future, always keeping in mind the old proverb that no one fights his own pocket book. In this city the organized Veteran combatant strength—not auxiliary—is 650. According to the Van Zandt formula of four it approximates 2500 out of a total of about 8000 votes cast. This ratio probably holds good throughout the land. And it is a conservative calculation.

In 1880 Miss Marion Osgood of Chelsea built a cottage adjacent to the common that was so far out on the rocks that nearly everybody predicted that it would be washed away during the coming winter.

However, this cottage is still with us and was afterward purchased by Dr. Henry Broughton of Jamaica Plain. Since then the present owner has lived in it for some 20 years and has so remodelled its interior that I am told he has six sleeping chambers therein with a private bath for each room. Fifty-six years ago the only place for one to take a bath was down in the creek. Yes, times have changed!

It was in this house in 1880 that we held what we considered to be a grand masquerade ball. It was some affair and everybody was there in more or less startling costumes. Space will not allow me to say more regarding it. Preceding this a Sheet and Pillow case party was held at a cottage around the corner from that now occupied by Mrs. John McGaw Foster. This, too, was considered to be a great success.

Early in the summer of that year someone at one of our evening gatherings on the common told of a new game called tennis. None of us had ever seen or played the game. We were told that for $25 an outfit could be purchased at Wright & Ditson's in Boston, but where were we to get the twenty-five was the question. Change in the pockets of the boys in those days was not much, indeed, not much was required. All the games in which we indulged required little if any money. I doubt if the whole crowd could have dug up the necessary twenty-five at that time. What to do? We all wanted to play the game but how? Finally, someone suggested that a concert be given to raise the necessary twenty-five. Lizzie Sherman, afterwards Mrs. Henry Souther, said that she thought her parents would allow the use of the large room in their cottage for the show. This cottage is now owned by Mr. Arthur M. Hess of New York City.

Again lack of space forbids my going into particulars regarding this concert. The program consisted of piano duets, violin solos, flute solos, and a one act farce. A satisfactory attendance brought in $35 and the game of tennis at Bass Rocks was assured. This, I believe, in addition to being the first game of tennis at Bass Rocks was probably the first tennis ever played on the whole North Shore. A court was laid out on the common, which though hardly level, was as fair for one as for the other. Tournaments were held and with the surplus ten dollars suitable prizes were secured. In scoring the boys began talking about "love fifteen and love thirty" with not too much emphasis, but the girls were soon yelling out all kinds of "love" double forte. Possibly they had had more experience in the use of this word. Who can tell?

As I read over what I have written I feel obliged to say that all the foregoing is merely a skeleton, so to speak, of a few of the ways that young people amused themselves in years long gone by. Still, it is my belief that they probably had just as much enjoyment as the younger element today with their late soirees, contract contests, cocktail parties and the like. What do you think?

OUTER CAPE ANN

Wednesday evening was a red letter night at the Magnolia Beach Club the annual corn roast being on the docket.

A large heap of driftwood covered with sea weed was fired in which had been placed corn and other viands which were cooked "to a turn" by the club chef. When the steaming mass was opened all "turned to" and ate al fresco—or what have you style. At any rate a good feed was had by all.

After justice had been done this Lucullian repast the assemblage repaired to the clubhouse where dancing completed the evening's program. The hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. John Zinsser and Mrs. Samuel Stevens. The party included about 60 guests and friends.

Entertaining at Luncheon at the Magnolia Beach Club this week were: Mrs. P. Hill, party of three; Miss Eleanor Jones, party of four; Mrs. W. McPherson, party of two; Mrs. W. G. Reeter, party of five; Mrs. M. S. Simpkins Jr., party of four; and Miss Pat Trenor, party of two.
